

Choose your pain.

It's not cool or easy to say no to your teenager.
It's not cool or easy to be the house where kids don't want to hang out.
It's not cool or easy to not be best friends with your child.

However.

It's not safe or legal to be the house that provides alcohol and looks the other way.
It's not safe or legal to be the parents who think smoking pot isn't a big deal.
And it's not fun or pleasant when your child fails a school drug test.
Or a field sobriety test. Or ultimately fails to launch into the life they have the potential to lead. It's incredibly difficult — and to a great extent, avoidable.

The choice is yours; and although it's not easy, it is clear:

Pay me now. Or pay me later.

When your family becomes an Eagle House, you play a critical role in a school community committed to raising young men who are responsible, accountable and healthy.
